

Reasons for Designation

6426 Sixth Line, Trafalgar_ Amos Kindree House

Legal Description

CON 6 New Survey PT LOT 8 RP 20R9148 PART 2

Description of Property

Amos Kindree built this house around 1870. It was one of the earliest farmhouses constructed in Trafalgar Township. Its cultural heritage value and interest lie in its physical, historical, and contextual value. Physically, it is a representative two-storey Gothic Revival-style house with a medium cross hip roof. Historically, it was the home of David Featherston, a farmer in Trafalgar Township. Contextually, this property is one of the few remaining farmhouses in the former Trafalgar Township.

Statement of Cultural Value and Interest

Historical Value

The history of this property is as fascinating as its physical features. The Crown first granted John Campbell Gardner the original 200 acres of land in 1822. The land changed hands several times; from Thomas Silverstone (1823), to John White (1840), to William Reid (1841), to James Price (1847), to Edward Bull (1854), to William Dent (1876), and finally to Amos Kindree (1855). It is believed that Amos Kindree built the house in 1870 before selling it to David Featherston in 1924. The Featherston family has since owned and farmed the land, preserving its historical legacy and its connection to the past and the people who have shaped this property over the years.

Physical or Design Value

The two-storey Gothic Revival-style house with red stretcher brick and a stone foundation is in good condition. It has a medium cross-gable roof with moulded verges and projecting eaves. The exterior red bricks are of stretcher bond. The east and south elevation features two open porches with lean-to roofs and plain timber posts. Two box bay windows at the south and east elevations are adorned with one-over-one windows, fancy brackets; moulded fascia, radiating buff brick voussoirs, and stone lug sills complete the exterior composition. One unique feature of this house is the one-over-one semicircular windows, with radiating dichromatic brick voussoirs and stone lug sill. On the south elevation, an original double-leaf, three-panel door has a pattern glass insert in the upper panel, It is complete with an arch transom, and radiating buff brick voussoir. These unique features add to the architectural interest and charm of the property.

Contextual Value

This property has significant contextual value as one of the remaining farmhouses built in Trafalgar Township. Its presence is a testament to the historical and architectural heritage of the area. This home is shown on the 1877 Historical Atlas of Halton County, further emphasizing its importance and the need for its preservation

Character Defining Elements/Heritage Attributes

Key attributes that reflect the cultural heritage value of the property include:

- Massing of the two-storey Gothic Revival-style house with a red stretcher brick and stone foundation.
- Medium cross gable roof with moulded verges and projecting eaves.
- Center gables on the south and east elevations.
- Two open porches with plain timber posts and lean-to roofs on the south and east elevations.
- Curved dichromatic voussoirs with keystones on the first floor bay windows
- Box bay windows at south and east elevation with one over one windows, decorative brackets, moulded fascia, radiating buff brick voussoirs and stone lug sills.
- Several semicircular one over one window with radiating dichromatic brick voussoirs and stone lug sill;
- Arch windows with radiating buff brick voussoirs and stone lug sill.
- Double leaf three panels door with upper panel pattern glass insert, arch transom and radiating buff brick voussoirs
- Historical home of David Featherston and family
- Context of the house as the last few remaining farmhouses in Trafalgar Township as shown in the 1877 Historical Atlas of Halton County